She fell limply to the floor, and crouched there with the newspaper in her hand. After a time she spread it out on the floor and spelled through the dancing characters in the long column. Her name was not mentioned. Those thirty years had outweighed the devotion of more than half a lifetime. It was the old woman s only revenge, and she had taken it. No tears came to Miss Williams s relief. She gasped occasionally. How could she? how could she? how could she? her mind reiterated. What difference would it have made to her after she was dead? And I--oh God--what will become of me? For a time she did not think of Strowbridge. When she did, it was to see him smiling into the eyes of Elinor Holt. Her delusion fell from her in that hour of terrible realities. Had she read of his engagement in the newspaper before her she would have felt no surprise. She knew now what had brought him back to California. Many trifles that she had not noted at the time linked themselves symmetrically together, and the chain bound the two young people. Fool! fool! she exclaimed. But no--thank heaven, I had that one little dream!--the only one in forty-three years! The maid tapped at her door and announced dinner. She bade her go away. She remained on the floor, in the dark, for many hours. The stars were bright, but...
