Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Evolution: Darwinian and Spencerian, the Herbert Spencer Lecture Delivered at the Museum, 8 December 1910 Among the great generalizations of the mid-Victorian era-that period which has witnessed such enormous advances in every department of natural science-the doctrine of Evolution stands out pre-eminently. With the foundation of that doctrine the names of our two great countrymen, Charles Darwin and Herbert Spencer, are indissolubly associated. The acceptance by this ancient University of a lectureship bearing the name of one of the founders of the modern doctrine is a sign of the times of the deepest significance in the intellectual development of this country. The century of Darwin s birth and the fiftieth j ear of the publication of the Origin of Species were celebrated here and at Cambridge last year; the tributes paid to his memory on those occasions are still fresh in our minds. Throughout the international chorus of admiration for the work of our great naturalist there rings out one clear note proclaiming that the method of viewing the process of organic development made known by Darwin and Wallace marked the beginning of a new epoch in human thought. The history of evolutionary ideas in general, and of the special form of organic evolution associated with the names of Darwin and Wallace, has been fully dealt with by many able writers. It may be difficult to place the subject in any new light; nevertheless, on the present About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
