Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.JUST ABOUT EVERYONE AT ONE TIME OR another has fantasized about being an actor, picturing yourself on a stage in front of a live audience, envisioning your close-up on the big screen at the movie theater, or accepting an Oscar or a Tony Award. There are some people for whom such thoughts are not a fantasy but instead a burning desire. For them the need to perform is a calling, something they must do. This is important because without that desire it is very difficult to put up with all the twists and turns experienced by most people who embark upon this wonderful but daunting career. If this describes you, then you may be ready to consider a career as a working actor. Remember, just like athletes, actors enjoy the thrill of victory, but also suffer the agony of defeat. While there are numerous examples of people achieving overnight success, they represent only a tiny fraction of all those who seek a professional acting career. Most actors are faced with the stiff challenge of making themselves stand out among a great many other talented and dedicated professionals. Despite the challenges, there is nothing else they would rather be doing. Approximately 66,000 people in this country consider themselves professional actors. Many of them spend many months with no income from acting jobs, working only sporadically. It is common, at least when starting out, to have jobs outside the profession to pay the rent. Of course, the upside is that there are many actors who earn millions from their work in movies and TV shows. Many others manage to sustain long careers with moderate incomes. Naturally, you want to become...
