A high quality pdf as well as the typeface applied was exciting to see. It really is written in simple words and phrases rather than difficult to understand. You will not really feel monotony at any time of your time (that's what catalogs are for relating to in the event you question me).

Dimensions: 9.7in. x 7.4in. x 0.1in.GAO reviewed the Armys efforts to improve the integration of manpower, personnel, and training (MPT) into its weapon systems acquisition process. GAO believes that: (1) the Army must effectively integrate MPT into the weapon system acquisition process to ensure that, once weapon systems are deployed, they can be properly operated and maintained; and (2) the Armys lack of centralized MPT management impedes its MPT improvement efforts. GAO found that a number of studies by the Army and other organizations have identified major systemic MPT problems that adversely affect the Armys ability to integrate MPT into the systems acquisition process, including: (1) a lack of leadership in MPT integration; (2) failure to identify MPT requirements early in the acquisition process; (3) failure to define MPT needs for contractors designing weapon systems; and (4) a lack of contract incentives for good MPT planning. GAO also found that the Army is improving its MPT integration efforts by: (1) clarifying the roles of certain key officials in the MPT integration process; (2) testing techniques to identify MPT needs early in the acquisition process; and (3) developing methodologies to identify MPT needs to weapon system contractors. However, GAO noted that there has been little coordination between three major Army commands with MPT responsibilities that are independently implementing MPT improvements. In addition, GAO found that the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, which has primary responsibility for MPT planning, has not established detailed procedures for carrying out MPT responsibilities.
