Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Once upon a time there was fantasy and there was reality. It was difficult to differentiate. This is reality. There are experiments that go on in our world that we know nothing about. Experiments on mice. Experiments on dogs. Experiments on people. What gives one human being the right to experiment on another human being? Does right have anything to do with it? Do people experiment on people because they can? Do they try to justify their experiments by claiming it is for the greater good? Can the experiments be for nothing more than a quest for greed or power? In an underground bunker somewhere in the Midwest U.S.A., such an experiment is alive and well. It is up to you to decide if such an experiment is for the greater good or mankind's ultimate demise. Reporting on this experiment may be for the purpose of enlightening mankind or it may panic mankind to the core of their mindless, dreamy, mundane existence. Meanwhile there was Harrook. He wanted to enjoy. Sense gratification was what it was. Through the ages by his own mystic power he was able to direct his own birth in suitable locations for himself. Through the performance of other severe austerities and penance he was able to atone for his sinful activities and not have to suffer the punishment of hell. By these same austerities, cultivation of knowledge, ancient sacrifice, and giving volumes of charity, the results of these same karmically good, seemingly pious activities, he was able to continuously rebuild his stock of karmic wealth, good fortune and luck to always be able to live lavish lifestyles of sense gratificatory pursuits. What about...
